EXPERTISE

Jazmin Bojorquez is an advocate and organizer who is passionate about creating healthy communities. For the past eight years she has conducted intake and coordinated programming for women, unhoused populations, and immigrant communities in Colorado. Internationally, she spearheaded projects in nutrition and sanitation to provide clean water and food systems in rural communities. She believes access to healthy, affordable, and culturally appropriate food is a human right.

As a project assistant for Progressive Urban Management Associates, Jazmin specializes in engaging with hard-to-reach communities to market the Colorado Fresh Food Financing Fund. She provides technical assistance for the program, Spanish translation, education, and eligibility screening to identify and mitigate barriers to entry for historically marginalized and underserved populations.

Prior to joining P.U.M.A., she conducted research on national best practices and authored reports on equitable policies related to the supplemental-nutrition-assistance program (SNAP), cash assistance, and Medicaid. While in Washington, D.C., she lobbied legislators to increase funding for social safety net programs. Jazmin leverages her diverse skill set and humanitarian values to approach economic development in a holistic and culturally sensitive manner.

Representative P.U.M.A. projects include:

- Conducting strategic community outreach, marketing, and technical assistance for the Colorado Fresh Food Financing Fund (CO4F), a grant and loan fund to support healthy food retailers in underserved communities.
- Facilitating communication in Spanish-speaking communities through translation, surveys, focus groups, and interviews.
